This fellowship seeks to strengthen and make visible scholarship on U.S.-Italy relations and on issues of cultural exchange.

Honoring the legacy of both Romeyne Robert and Uguccione Ranieri, the grant will be awarded to researchers of any nationality working on projects involving (but not limited to) themes and topics related to institutions active in fields such as:

- U.S.-Italy political, social and economic relations
- Cultural diplomacy and promotion of Italian language and culture in the U.S.
- Literary and artistic exchanges between Italy and the U.S.
- Women entrepreneurship and women empowerment through education

The fellowship will provide for research support up to $10,000.

The Romeyne Robert and Uguccione Ranieri Fellowship Grant Selection Committee particularly welcomes applications from postdoctoral students and early career scholars.

The research should result in original scholarship; e.g., an academic essay, a book chapter or a book-length manuscript. The John D. Calandra Italian American Institute has first rights of acceptance for intended publication.
